There is no doubt that this is an important decision to make - you will need to be sure that you are in the right hands so that you have an excellent and healthy overall experience. You need to feel comfortable with the team and safe in the environment that they offer and be given a concise view of the procedure, materials and all dental implant costs that will incur so you are able to enjoy your long-lasting new teeth.

So...where do you begin to find the dental implant specialist dentist that will do the best job for you? You do your research.

1/- The specialist in dental implantology

First of all, you should find a specialist in dental implants, an oral surgeon, or sometimes referred as an implantologist. You need to make sure your dentist has the education, training and know-how for the procedure of implanting new teeth as well as a full understanding of your body and your needs. There are many general dentists who claim to be able to do the job, but you should definitely go for the experts. Check credentials.

2/- The Clinic

Secondly, you should visit the clinic to make sure you feel comfortable with the environment. How up-to-date is it? Do they use the latest procedures and technologies. Do they use biological methods? How prepared will you be for the implant surgery? You will need to feel re-assured that the procedure works for you in every way, from the beginning, through the procedure, all the way to your recovery. You certainly don't want to feel like it is a "drive through" experience. Even though the actual procedure of dental implants can be done in a day, make sure the clinic does not make you feel like you are just "passing by".

3/- The budget

Next you will need to find a clinic and implant specialist that will consider your budget and costs of the implants.

Maybe you need more than one implant - can this be done over time so it is not such a big spend all at once? Perhaps some of the teeth can be saved as opposed to a complete set of implants?

4/- A comprehensive diagnosis and detailed treatment plan

And finally, make sure the procedure is detailed to you completely, concisely and transparently – you don't want any surprises! You will want to walk through how dental implants work and how long they will last. Your dentist should also show you all of the materials that are involved and make sure they work with you and your body. Are they natural products? Do they use natural methods? How best can you be prepared for the oral surgery and how best will you recover?

5/- A functional and integrative approach of your oral health

And last of all, find a clinic in Dubai that not only specialises in dental implants but works towards helping you to maintain your excellent oral as well as general health. Having a healthy body is simultaneous with having a healthy mouth and will help you recover better and faster from any surgical procedure.
